Industrial Relations Society of Victoria

Patron's Night Dinner
Thursday 25th November 2004

Guest Speaker: Senator Andrew Murray

Our guest speaker on the occasion of Patron's Night 2004 will be Senator Andrew Murray, Workplace Relations Spokesperson for the Australian Democrats.

Senator Murray has contributed to the industrial relations debate in Australia on a number of important issues. He has successfully amended workplace relations bills that have resulted in improved processes, reduced litigation and delays and addressed small business concerns without weakening employee's substantive rights.

The Senator firmly believes in an industrial relations system that provides for the systematic regulation of employment practices that maximises and balances productivity, jobs growth and job security while ensuring fair conditions and treatment for all employees. He is a strong advocate of the unitary system of industrial relations to replace the present system of six different workplace relations' jurisdictions which is costly, inefficient and damaging in a country of only 20 million people.

While the outcome of the federal election will have an obvious impact on the Senate, we believe that Senator Murray still has much to contribute to the debate and we look forward to his address with interest.
